“Article Writing Competition”

Topic :	Article Writing Competition- An initiative by Literary Club ,RDIAS
Date of event :	January 28, 2011- March 1,2011
Aim of the Event :	If my doctor told me I had only six minutes to live, I wouldn't brood. I'd type a little faster. Isaac Asimov This adage capture the essence of writing, which is like a drug, the more you indulge in it, the more you want. This event provided a great opportunity for those oozing with information, willing to share thoughts and document them. This was precisely the aim of the event.
Event Report in brief:	This event was stretched over a period of one month wherein all the students were encouraged to think, create, write, explore, formulate, reformulate and come up with an amazing piece of writing. The students were given the freedom to write about something which is of interest to them. It was an experience in itself because here we saw students who have never raised their pen for creative pursuits, pondering over ideas to write! On the other hand there were those who did not know where to stop and their drafts had to be edited, framed and rephrased. The winners for this event were : First Position-Mr. Vijay Chandola (MBAII Sem)for his writing: Are Changes Always Good Second Position-Apurva Bhatia (MBAIV Sem)for her writing: Where Does it all end? It is rightly said that when you put your heart to something, the results are fantastic. Writing; also follows the same rule. Indeed, a commendable effort by the students and their creative minds!!
