Synopsis

The main objective of this lecture was to make students aware of the working of mythological characters of our culture and their association with the Management.

This lecture on "Activities of Lord HANUMAN and its Relationship with Management Practices" provided the students with information the characteristics of the Lord Hanuman and its seamless relation with various Management Practices.

The Guest Lecture was organized for the benefit of students of MBA Students, Faculty member of RDIAS and Teachers of RDPS.

The talk highlighted that apart from Lord Hanuman no one in this world was successful in every facet. Everyone else faces failure at one point or the other. We as human beings also face failure but we do learn from them and gain experience. Then there are also certain people in this world who have the ability to learn from the experiences of others and gain some insight, While Lord Hanuman was one of a kind who never experienced failure and was successful because of his extraordinary capabilities and uniqueness. He quoted the example of Lord Krishna, saying that he also faced certain failures but his successes were so big that his failures appeared as miniature in front of them. Thus even in our mythology there have been characters who faced failures but only Lord Hanuman is one of his kind who never experienced such incidents. In our culture the transition to be a lord goes from the three stages of "MAN" to “DEVTA” and then “LORD”. While Lord Hanuman was the only one who became Lord from a monkey. He encouraged one and all to try and grow in a revolutionary manner instead of growing in a reformative manner because then only we can attain heights and mark our impression. And to grow in a revolutionary manner we need to inculcate the characteristics possessed by Lord Hanuman.
