Online test on Data Interpretation and Logical Reasoning

Topic :	Online test on Data Interpretation and Logical Reasoning
Date of event :	February 18,2011
Aim of the Event :	Written tests of objective nature on data interpretation and logical reasoning have always been the part of the recruitment procedures of various companies of repute. To enhance these skills in our students, this activity was conducted under the mentorship program of the institute.
Event Report in brief:	With the aim of grooming and enhancing the skills of students of MBA II, an online test consisting of multiple choice questions about Logical reasoning and Data interpretation was conducted. The best part about DI and LR section is that there are hardly any concepts that you need to know before the test. This section largely tests the reasoning skills: in case of both LR and DI. The same can be acquired/fine-tuned through practice and more practice. And to make our students stand out extraordinarily during the campus placement times we constantly make them face such challenges. This also makes them aware about the current industry pattern of recruitment procedure wherein the companies usually begin with a written test covering aptitude questions. Logical reasoning and data interpretation is that branch of aptitude where the reasoning skills of a person are judged. To be a successful manager you need good reasoning skill to come out of any problematic situation. Students showed great enthusiasm while participating in this activity.
