They divided all the students into four groups and each group was sent to different schools. Representatives of RDIAS started the session by a formal introduction with children and carried on with activities like story telling and book reading .They asked questions to students regarding their library activities and also participation and interest in other activities. This session was with students of class I, II and V. Each volunteer group would now submit its report to Ms Pallavi Kakaji, Chief Coordinator of Pratham. Caring for younger students by the elder ones is a task of responsibility and demands high level commitment in exposing them to the very best and relevant information.
